

FASD Seminar for parents: Fetal alcohol spectrum disorders

Delivered by Doctor Alan Price

Venue: Via Zoom

Date: Tuesday 5th October Time: 1.00 – 2.30 pm

Dr Alan Price is a research fellow at the University of Salford. He is part of the Salford FASD research team led by Professor Penny Cook in partnership with Dr Raja Mukherjee at the National FASD clinic in Surrey. Dr Price's FASD research focuses on interventions and support, prevalence, and the compounding impact of adverse childhood experiences. He has written and delivered a parent training programme for caregivers of children with FASD and was involved in the first gold-standard estimate of the prevalence of FASD in the UK.

This introductory seminar will provide an overview of FASD covering the history and development of the field, the presentation of FASD and how it is diagnosed, the prevalence of FASD in general and special populations, mechanisms of harm caused by prenatal alcohol exposure, complexities around multiple exposures, current guidelines for professionals, and interventions and support for FASD including treatments and prevention. The talk will last around 50-60 minutes and there will be around 30 minutes for questions.

To book a place email samantha@standnw.org or call 07570 583 842